

ABOUT THE STATE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

Benjamin Mosher of Newport had one foot crushed when a heavy box fell on it.

The Rutland community chorus is to give its last concert of the season in May.

The dates of the Valley fair at Brattleboro have been decided upon as Sept. 11 and 12.

Conductor M. J. Powers is gradually recovering from a recent illness at his home in White River Junction.

Clarence Clark, while returning from Brattleboro to West Halifax a few days ago, saw a coon. He left the team, chased the coon and caught it, then killed it with a stick.

Peter Pirk of Sutton, who was drawing logs from Sutton mountain, was found lying unconscious with a stick across his face. He suffered a concussion of the brain.

Mrs. Emily K. Garland, over 70 years old and living in Bradford, has split a cord of rock maple wood the past week besides doing her housework, sewing and knitting for the Red Cross.

Henry A. Wood, a lifelong resident of Barnard, died March 16 in New Rochelle, N. Y., where he was spending the winter. He was a veteran of the Civil war and well known in southern Vermont.

Underhill is already making plans for a rotating Fourth of July celebration, with baseball in the forenoon, a farmer's dinner, consisting of rice and Indian pudding and like substitutes, and sports in the afternoon.

Howard Goodrich of Stamford recently lost two cows from poisoning. It is thought the cause of their death was eating hay which grew near potatoes which were treated last summer with arsenate of lead.

Edward E. Farmer of Poulney is suing his brother-in-law, John D. Williams of the same town, in Rutland county court, the basis of the suit being a loan of $1,050 made to the plaintiff to the defendant several years ago.

Rev. D. E. Trout, pastor of the First Universalist church in Brattleboro is to preach in Fitchburg, Mass., Sunday, in response to an urgent appeal from the committee of that church. Mr. Trout has been pastor of the Brattleboro church for 11 years, his first regular pastorate.

In the list of casualties from abroad printed in Wednesday dailies was the name of Private Martin J. Murphy. Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Murphy of Bradford have a son by that name in the service in France, but inasmuch as they have received no notification of his death from the government they assume that it was some soldier bearing the same name from another part of New England who had been killed by accident.

A romance begun on shipboard about a year ago will be culminated by the marriage in England before many weeks of Dr. Herbert Durham of Swanton and Miss M. Beatrice Anderson of Toronto, Can. It was while both were on a voyage from a voyage to England that they met, and when they reached New York they were engaged to marry in two years. When war broke out, the doctor left for France, where he is caring for wounded soldiers in a hospital, and he has summoned his fiancée to join him there, where their marriage will occur. Miss Anderson sailed from New York March 15. Dr. Durham graduated from the University of Vermont in 1909.

Summer School at Castleton.

The summer school at the Castleton Normal school will open July 1 for four weeks. This school is for teachers now in service and for any who have been teachers in Vermont and who desire to take up the work of teaching again.

A wide choice of subjects is possible, as instruction is given in all the subjects taught in the elementary schools and in drawing, games, folk dances, Red Cross work, etc.

A representative of the victrola people will be present for one week, illustrating the possibilities of the victrola in the schools, especially along the lines of music appreciation.

Miss Bertha Holden of the home economics department of the University of Vermont will give demonstration work during the first two weeks of the school. Teachers are already beginning to register.
